

Landlord Compliance Checklist — Western Australia

The obligations every rental provider must meet — in an actively reforming legal environment.

Correct as at July 2026. General information only, not legal advice. WA tenancy law is under active review — confirm current requirements with Consumer Protection WA before relying on this checklist alone.

Section 1 — Current Termination Rules

- ☐ [] Know the current position (as at July 2026). You can currently end a periodic tenancy with 60 days' notice, or a fixed-term tenancy at the end of its term with 30 days' notice, without providing a reason.
- ☐ [] Stay alert to the proposed reform. In May 2026, the WA Government announced its intention to end no-grounds terminations, replacing them with prescribed grounds (owner/relative occupation, renovation, repeated tenant breach) — this had not yet passed into law as at July 2026. Once enacted, this will materially change how you can end a tenancy — build monitoring this into your compliance routine.

Section 2 — Bonds (Recently Reformed)

- ☐ [] Understand the 2026 bond release reforms, effective from 28 March 2026 — the process is now more streamlined, and any party (including the tenant) can initiate a bond release request, not just you or your property manager.
- ☐ [] Know bond disputes go through a Commissioner-based process first, not automatically to the Magistrates Court.
- ☐ [] Know your appeal rights and window — 7 days to the Magistrates Court if you disagree with a determination.
- ☐ [] Respect the maximum pet bond of $350.
- ☐ [] Never claim fair wear and tear against a bond — this isn't permitted.

Section 3 — Rent and Tenancy Management

- ☐ [] Follow correct notice periods and processes for rent arrears and other issues.
- ☐ [] Complete entry and exit condition reports for every tenancy, and keep thorough records — photos, correspondence, receipts.
- ☐ [] Respond to repair requests promptly, particularly for anything urgent or safety-related.

Section 4 — Staying Current With Reform

- ☐ [] Monitor the no-grounds eviction reform's progress — REIWA has raised industry concerns about potential rental supply impacts, so the final form, exemptions, or timing could shift as the legislation progresses through Parliament.
- ☐ [] Watch for other proposed changes flagged alongside the eviction reform — the announcement referenced broader Residential Tenancies Act review work, including clearer rental property standards and restrictions on information landlords can request from applicants; these may commence on a different timeline to the eviction changes.

Section 5 — Penalties for Non-Compliance

- ☐ [] Understand the Magistrates Court's role in resolving disputes that can't be settled through the Commissioner process.
- ☐ [] Keep thorough records of all tenancy communications and compliance steps — given the current mix of settled and actively-changing rules, good documentation is your best protection against both tenant disputes and any future compliance review.

Quick Reference — WA Landlord Compliance (July 2026)

OBLIGATION	CURRENT POSITION
Termination notice (periodic)	60 days, no reason required (currently)
Termination notice (fixed-term, at expiry)	30 days, no reason required (currently)
No-grounds eviction ban	Proposed, not yet law
Bond release process	Reformed as of 28 March 2026 — any party can initiate
Bond dispute appeal	7 days to Magistrates Court
Maximum pet bond	$350

© HouseHQ. General information only, current as at the date shown — not legal advice. Given active reform, confirm current requirements with Consumer Protection WA before relying on this checklist for compliance purposes.